PRESIDENT'S MESSAGE

Greetings ASSP Colleagues,

I hope you are all staying well and taking reasonable precautions these days. It appears we're entering a new phase of the pandemic, mid-stream in the mass public vaccination process. Armed with better knowledge on how to treat COVID infections and how to use the hierarchy of controls to reduce risk, it seems our health outcomes are improving.

There are still a good many unknowns we need to better understand before we get too far ahead of ourselves, but the progress is encouraging thus far. This month, we will recognize and honor Chapter members for their service and contributions to the mission of ASSP. We will also celebrate a group of outstanding young people who are preparing themselves for occupational health and safety careers with the presentation of ASSP

Alabama Chapter Scholarships. This May 14th meeting is planned as an onsite/virtual gathering and we'll be sharing more information soon. May is also elections month, and our Chapter members should be receiving more information about that very soon.

Please continue to take care out there. Remember that we are the at the forefront of best practices for safety and health and we need set the example for others to follow.

Thank you for your dedication and ongoing efforts to keep people safe and healthy at work and at home.

Best to all,

Matt Hollub, CIH, CSP

President, ASSP Alabama Chapter
